

Life on the Sun (One Page Sample)

By

Aslan Hollier

Martin Biggers lives on the sun and has never slept or had dreams, until today. His roommate, Angela Bigger, brings him the power to dream, and she helps him obtain his dream of going to Earth.

Martin watches as the TV shows people swimming, people laying by the beach, sitting on the grass by clear ponds, playing in the water beneath the stars.

He smiles, then glances out the window into the glowing fiery world he lives on, and let's out a sigh.

Angela Bigger bursts through the door and Martin jumps out of his seat. Angela plops down next to Martin on the couch with a huge smile on her face.

ANGELA

I have it, Martin Biggers!

MARTIN

Have what, Angela Bigger?

ANGELA

The ultimate experience. A drug I came across.

Martin rolls his eyes.

MARTIN

Oh really? What's special about this one?

Angela pulls out the box she found out of her bag.

ANGELA

DMT. It's what dreams are made of.

She takes out the drugs and a pipe.

MARTIN

Nice slogan, but no fancy shmancy name? What does DMT stand for?

ANGELA

I don't know, some mumbo jumbo, but people on Earth call it dreaming. They do it when they sleep.

MARTIN

What the hell is sleep?

ANGELA

I don't know. It's something they do when it's dark.

MARTIN

Too bad it doesn't get dark here.